

BRITONS MERRY OVER BOERS GIVE IN

Britons celebrated the finish of the Boer war Saturday evening with a smoking concert at San Antonio hall. There were several scores of enthusiastic Englishmen present when the meeting was called to order by Robert Catton, seated about the hall at small tables, each with its jug of beer and set of cornob pipes. They came to show their good feeling and they did so despite that the hours had grown short before all was said and done that they thought should be done to doate pleasure over the results and to forecast new victories in peace.

Chairman Catton, after calling the meeting to order, asked R. A. Jordan for a few words, and stress was laid upon the order of the Sons of St. George, under whose auspices the celebration was given. Mr. Jordan spoke feelingly of the close of the war and what the chances for development meant not only to the people of the country but of South Africa as well. D. W. Anderson, Carl Mett, furnishing the piano part, sang one of his best comic songs. Mr. Pfleger joined Mr. Mett and they played some duets, ending up with the national anthem, during which the guests stood and joined in shouting the chorus.

Judge W. L. Stanley spoke of the war, characterizing it as a just one, and went upon the beneficent results which will follow the pacification of the territory and the great effect of the binding together closer of colonies and England. Finishing his effort Judge Stanley recited Kipling's "Recessional." T. Clive Davies sang and gave an encore, and Anderson sang a humorous song, but John F. Bower turned away the questioner, making such reference as resulted in getting Judge Stanley out, as a substitute, and the visitors applauded song and recitation without stint.

Attorney General E. P. Dole said that there could not well be closer relations than between the American and Briton, the former being one of family. It was late at night when the program was over and every one expressed himself as pleased with the outcome of the celebration.

RACE MEET THAT WILL DRAW PEOPLE

There will be a meeting of the executive committee of the Jockey Club held soon, at which time steps will be taken to carry through the plans desired by the Merchants' Association for the holding of a race meet in connection with the Fair Day, which is to be held during the time of the Agricultural Fair.

It is the plan so far as the matter has gone to have the merchants donate a sum toward the amount of the purses. The sum has been placed at $500, unofficially, as there have been no steps taken for the purpose of getting down to definite statements. There is much interest in what may be determined, as the day chosen will come just long enough after the return of the horses which go to Hilo to permit them to get into shape for the running here. The success of the gentlemen's driving race Saturday last means that there will be more than one such event the next time there is a meeting. Some of the drivers in the race believe there could be secured twice as many untrained horses for such an event, and the interest in it may result in making a pacing and trotting event.

To Rehabilitate Lusitana.

At a special meeting of the Lusitana Society Friday night it was decided that a new charter for the society be prepared, the capital stock being limited to $250,000, and that a new hall suitable to the needs of the society be erected. A clerk will be retained who shall keep his office at the hall, for the purpose of receiving money and transacting all business needed. The report of the committee which makes recommendations as above, also suggests a provision which will provide for readmission of members to the society. This would permit such former members as Consul Canavaro, P. A. Dias and J. A. Gonsalves, who resigned from the society, to rejoin it. June 20th was set for a meeting to elect members to a convention to revise the society's laws. J. M. Vivas and Joseph Frias were appointed a committee to draft resolutions of condolence in the matter of the recent Martinique disaster.
